We went last year and we had such a fantastic time. It's all Afro-Caribbean, with people in amazing costumes and these brilliant steel bands. We don't go in costume, but we do dance a lot. It does get quite crowded, so you have to make sure you stick together. And you have to watch out for pickpockets when there are so many people in the same place. But it's really good fun; it's like London becomes a different country. Even the police dance sometimes.

Living Land Animals

The elephant is the largest living land animal. The African elephant may reach up to 3.5 metres tall and weigh as much as 5,000 kilograms. The Indian one is smaller, but it is gentler and more easily trained to work for men.

The elephant's most useful limb is its trunk, which is very strong and can lift a heavy log. It breathes through the trunk and uses it to suck up water when it wants a shower. The trunk is also used to bring food to its mouth. The bulls have huge tusks which can grow up to three metres long. They use the tusks for digging up roots to eat and carrying things. The cows have tusks too, but they are much smaller.
