Turtles
Turtles have been around for more than 200 million years. Covered by their shells, turtles are walking houses. Scientists think they are the most ancient of all reptiles. Turtles live in many places on land and in water. Like all reptiles, they are cold-blooded. Turtles that live where winters are cold usually hibernate. Turtles eat insects, fish, and frogs. They also munch on plants, including fruits and flowers. The largest turtle is the leatherback, which can weigh more than 2,000 pounds. That's one huge reptile.

(cited from Linda Ward Beech)

Seasons Around the World
In many parts of the world, the year is divided into four seasons: spring, summer, autumn, and winter. Each season lasts about three months and brings changes in temperature and weather. During spring, the days are usually warm. In summer, the days are hotter, and the nights are warm. In autumn, the days are cooler and in winter, it is cold. The Equator divides the world into two hemispheres, the Northern Hemisphere and the Southern Hemisphere. The seasons do not occur at the same time in the Northern Hemisphere as they do in the Southern Hemisphere. When it is summer in the Northern Hemisphere, it is winter in the Southern Hemisphere.

The History of Chocolate

One of the most popular foods of all time is chocolate. People nowadays eat chocolate on many different forms. We eat chocolate candy, and we drink hot and cold chocolate drinks. The chocolate we eat today is made from a lot of different ingredients, but the most important ingredient is cacao bean.

The story of cacao bean and its long journey to stores and supermarkets all over the world started hundreds of years ago in Mexico. Cacao trees need hot and humid weather, and they grew in the Yucatan Peninsula.

The Maya were the first people to eat cacao beans. They picked cacao beans from wild trees and cleared land to cultivate their own trees. They made a drink from cacao beans and exchanged the beans for other goods. They also used cacao beans for religious ceremonies.
