COVID Masks

Doctors in Germany have reported cases of 46 people with symptoms such as sneezing and an itchy and runny nose after wearing an FFP2 mask.

The masks, which are the gold standard for blocking Covid particles and are sold widely in the UK, have also been found to shed plastic fibers up to a tenth of an inch (3mm) in length, which are found in people's noses.

For all but a tiny minority, the masks will cause no problems, with thousands having worn them during the pandemic in Germany, and only a few dozen reporting symptoms.

But when researchers flushed out the noses of the 46 people with allergic symptoms in Germany, they found an average of almost four plastic fibers per person.

In some cases, people suffered symptoms such as a runny and blocked nose or sneezing within two hours of wearing an FFP2 mask. Their symptoms typically got much better after three days of not wearing the mask.

Dr. Jan Hagemann, senior author of a research paper reporting the phenomenon said "These results do not suggest people should not wear masks. The symptoms linked to FFP2 masks are more likely to be irritating than to cause an ongoing problem."

Garbage

Garbage cans are not magical portals. Trash does not disappear when you toss it in a can. Yet, the average American throws away an estimated 1,600 pounds of waste each year. If there are no magic garbage fairies, where does all that trash go? There are four methods to managing waste: recycling, landfilling, composting, and incinerating. Each method has its strengths and weaknesses. Let's take a quick look at each.

Recycling is the process of turning waste into new materials. For example, used paper can be turned into paperboard, which can be used to make book covers. Recycling can reduce pollution, save materials, and lower energy use. Yet, some argue that recycling wastes energy. They believe that collecting, processing, and converting waste uses more energy than it saves. Still, most people agree that recycling is better for the planet than landfilling.

Landfilling is the oldest method of managing waste. In its simplest form, landfilling is when people bury garbage in a hole. Over time the practice of landfilling has advanced. Garbage is compacted before it is thrown into the hole. In this way more garbage can fit in each landfill. Large liners are placed in the bottom of landfills so that toxic garbage juice doesn't get into the ground water. Sadly, these liners don't always work. Landfills may pollute the local water supply. Not to mention that all of that garbage stinks. Nobody wants to live next to a landfill. This makes it hard to find new locations for landfills.

As landfill space increases, interest in composting grows. Compositing is when people pile up organic matter, such as food waste, and allow it to decompose. The product of this decomposition is compost. Compost can be added to the soil to make the soil richer and better for growing crops. While composting is easy to do onsite somewhere, like home or school, it's hard to do after the garbage gets all mixed up. This is because plastic and other inorganic materials must be removed from the compost pile or they will pollute the soil. There's a lot of plastic in garbage, which makes it hard to compost on a large scale.
